

Teil A – Reading Comprehension

Read the text carefully.

A Day I Will Never Forget

Last summer, my family and I visited a small village in Austria where my grandfather had grown up. It was a peaceful place whose narrow streets and old houses looked like something from another century. We stayed in a hotel that was located near a lake which reflected the mountains around it.

One evening, we met an old man who had known my grandfather as a child. He showed us the school where they had studied together and told us stories about the time when they used to play near the river. The old man, whose memory was surprisingly good, remembered almost every detail.

The next day, we climbed a mountain whose top was covered in snow even in summer. During the hike, we saw an eagle that was flying above us and a wooden cabin where travellers could rest. It was one of those experiences that you never forget.

When we left the village, I realised that places which seem small or unimportant can still hold memories that last forever.
